PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

By Evan Beren

Its summer, its hot most days, stay hydrated. Drink water or a sports re-hydration beverage, remember, beer does not count as a re-hydration beverage. Sunscreen, use it, and don't be shy about it, the stronger the better. And a hat, wear a hat, if you do nothing else wear a hat on the golf course.

Now guys, we play tournament golf in this club, every month we have 1 or 2 tournaments. Take some time to learn the basic rules. Here are a few that seem to need to be refreshed. All putts must be holed, there are no gimmies in tournament golf. You can not use a training aid during a tournament round. Mark your golf balls so that you will know that it is your ball and not some other players ball before you play it. There is an entire book of rules, it's called the rule book, as golfers it's your responsibility to have a working knowledge of the rules.

Please, post your scores when you play a casual round. Again, we are getting complaints of certain players not posting. Please post. It's easy; you can do it at the course, on your phone with the GHIN app or from your home computer.

The tournament committee has started working on the 2018 schedule. If you have a course you would like us to look into, send me an email and we will check it out.

Remember, this is our club, everything we do is done by volunteers. We are always looking for, and need more help - so send me an email if you have the time and desire to help out.

THE NEXT TEE

CITY CORNER

By Craig Kessler

Some of you will find the following observation crazy, others merely counterintuitive, but what the city is trying to do with its golf program is what the American Golf Corporation is trying to accomplish with its Players Club program.

For those who are unaware, the Players Club is a $29 to $49 per month program that enables its members to hit unlimited range balls, secure early priority access to twilight rates, enjoy rates that match the lowest charged by 3rd party vendors (e.g., Golf Now), and receive low cost lessons from PGA Professionals. It amounts to an affinity program on steroids, and its underlying rationale is the re-creation of the high volume conditions that characterized municipal golf courses before modernity allowed golfers to make tee times, make games, join clubs, and meet fellow golfers without having to actually hang out at a golf course. When people "hang out" they play more, they practice more, they spend more, they joint more, and they stick with the game more.

American Golf and Kemper Sports and JC Resorts and Troon Golf – indeed, all of them – are able to recreate the conditions of a better past in hopes of a better future, because they have control of all of the functions at their golf courses – tee times, practice facilities, golf carts, tournaments, banquet facilities, food & beverage. They can bundle them and perhaps just as importantly bundle them via modern electronic means in ways conducive of getting golfers to again "hang out" at golf courses.

By taking control first of golf carts and now driving ranges the city has taken the first set of steps required to put it in the same position as the management companies. When the new state-of-the-art Internet Reservation and Point of Sale System is in place, which with any luck should be before the end of the year, the city will have added the level of electronic sophistication necessary to create its own affinity programs on steroids complete with the marketing tools needed to promote them. While the city will not be able to achieve the same level of food/beverage/banquet control as is enjoyed by the management groups, the new system-wide RFP in end stage development should yield arrangements considerably more amenable to city control than the Balkanized system of ad hoc arrangements now in place at the city's golf courses. Perhaps not perfect, but eminently workable.

The SCGA's "Alternative Member Network" (AMN) was crafted for many of the same reasons and to accomplish many of the same ends as these commercial affinity programs. The main reason: Golfers no longer have to physically go to golf courses nor want to physically go to golf courses in order to join a golf club; they expect to find and join online. The clubs don't have the reach, capacity or online presence to establish the necessary platform, but the SCGA does and did. The main end: To grow the ranks of clubs and in the process the ranks of the game in the municipal sector.

The SCGA has opened discussions with American Golf and the others about integrating their new integrative products into the traditional golf club universe to achieve that same end – grow the ranks of clubs and in the process the ranks of golfers, particularly the ranks of the "avid" golfers who hang out at golf courses, play more golf, and spend more money on the game when doing so. When the city is fully functional I expect that the SCGA and the city will find the same common ground and enter into the same discussion.

Golf clubs tend to be insular, suspicious of change and thus loath to embrace it. But unless they want to get left behind, they'll need to make the same pivots toward modernity as have the management companies, the city, and the SCGA.

HANDICAP CHATTER

by Tommaso Trinchieri, Handicap Chairman

To Post, Or Not To Post

To post, or not to post that is the question. Which scores do you have to post for your USGA Handicap Index and which scores are you not allowed to post? It's certainly not as big a dilemma as Shakespeare's Hamlet faced, but it's still an important question that you must answer.

To Post

Here are the basic guidelines. Generally, you should post all scores no matter where you play. But there are a few specific rules to follow in particular cases:

- Post your score when you play at least 7 holes. On the holes you didn't play, record a par plus any handicap strokes you would have received.
- Post a score if you play two nines even if it's the same nine, or nines from different days. Simply post the nines individually and GHIN will combine the scores for you.
- When you pick up on a hole, jot down the score you most likely would have made. If this score is higher than the maximum number you are allowed under the ESC system, then you need to adjust your score to this maximum.
- You must play by the principles of the Rules of Golf in order to post your score. For instance, if you use a mulligan, you aren't playing a hole under the Rules of Golf, so treat it as a hole not played and record par plus any handicap strokes you would have received.

Not to Post

When don't you post scores?

- When fewer than seven holes are played;
- When made on a golf course in an area in which an inactive season established by the authorized golf association is in effect (does not apply in SoCal);
- When a majority of the holes are not played in accordance with the principles of the Rules of Golf;
- When, as a condition of the competition, the maximum number of clubs allowed is less than 14, or types of clubs are limited as, for example, our annual Five-Club Tournament;
- When scores are made on a course with no USGA Course or Slope Rating;
- When a player carries or uses non-conforming clubs or uses non-conforming balls;
- When artificial devices (as defined under Rule 14-3) are used during the execution of a stroke.

And as a final reminder, SMGC will always post your scores for our club events, no need to post these scores.
